

Select Internet Safety resources for younger students and their teachers and caregivers

All links below and many more can be found at LISD's Internet Safety website:
<http://lisd.us/cemat/internetsafety>

iKeepSafe: Internet Keep Safe Coalition

<http://ikeepSAFE.org/>

Resources for educators, parents, and grandparents and students including tips, videos, and activities from a coalition of agencies. Look in the left-hand column to find the link for the video and storybook (Macromedia Flash player needed) for elementary aged children depicting FauxPaw, the techno-cat, learning about Internet safety.

i-SAFE

<http://www.isafe.org/>

i-SAFE America Inc. is a federally designated non-profit Internet safety foundation founded in 1998. i-SAFE offers free, age-appropriate, proactive curriculum to schools. Register and begin i-LEARN, <http://ilearn.isafe.org/>, online training to become certified in i-SAFE. Completing the training (about 2 hours) grants individuals access to the Internet safety curriculum which educators can implement with students.

NetSmartz

<http://www.netSMARTZ.org/>

Many interactive resources for students, parents, educators, & law enforcement; Companion site specifically for kids: <http://www.netSMARTZkids.org>. Flashy site designed to help elementary students to learn about being safe online, includes lots of games and activities about topics like: privacy, password use, opening files, Instant Messaging, abbreviations, etc.

Stop Bullying Now

<http://www.stopbullyingnow.hrsa.gov>

Comprehensive site by U.S. Department of Health and Human Services; includes web animations of student characters dealing with bullying issues including forms of cyberbullying. See also their cyberbullying page found under 'What Adults Can Do.'

WiredKids

http://www.wiredkids.org/wiredkids_org.html

Part of a larger effort called www.wiredsafety.org. "WiredKids, has many online safety games for younger children and information for children of all ages as well as helpful information for teachers, parents and law enforcement."